Established in 1999, Mind Design is an accomplished design consultancy that specialises in the development of visual identities which includes print, web, packaging and interior graphics. The studio is run by Holger Jacobs who has more than 20 years experience and worked for a wide range of clients, from start-ups to established international companies. The studios work has been showcased in various publications.

Alongside his work with Mind Design, Holger is a professor for corporate design and typography at the University of Applied Sciences in Düsseldorf and regularly gives talks and workshops. He is a member of the of The Chartered Society of Designers (CSD), The International Society of Typographic Designers (ISTD) and The Royal College of Art Society. Holger also works internationally as a consultant for individual clients, creative agencies, commercial and cultural organisations.

Our approach combines conceptual thinking, attention to detail and hands-on craftsmanship. We work in an organized and logical step-by-step process but at the core of our design process lies personal intuition.

We never follow a standard formula and often develop visual ideas on the basis of research into production processes or the use of unusual materials. Since we consider the actual applications first, we turn the traditional process (concept–design–implementation) on its head and actually design ‘backwards’. Depending on the demands of a project we take advantage of our large network of creative professionals to maximise its potential.

YOUR GUIDE TO THE VIEW

Views don't get much better than Paramount's. Which is why we've compiled a fold-out-and-keep guide to the iconic landmarks before you, best enjoyed with our high tea.

BT TOWER
 Commissioned by the General Post Office in 1962 to support the microwave signals then used to carry telecommunications traffic from London to the rest of the country. It remained the tallest building in the UK until 1982, and is still a major 24-hour broadcast transmission centre.

SENATE HOUSE
 Art Deco administrative centre of the University of London. During WWII, it was the Ministry of Information, an inspiration for the Ministry of Truth in George Orwell's 1984, and is said to be Hitler's favoured choice for his intended HQ.

BRITISH MUSEUM
 Established in 1753 (some editions bring the actual ground level of the Great Court, designed by Lord Foster and completed in 2000). Dedicated to human history and culture, with over 2.5 miles of galleries.

ST GEORGE'S CHURCH
 The sixth and final London church designed by the leading architect of English Baroque, Nicholas Hawksmoor. Renamed in Regent's named 'St Luke' prior to 1912.

OLYMPIC PARK
 The Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park is the sporting complex built for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic. Its subsequent usage is set to bring further regeneration to East London.

ST PAUL'S
 Over 30 years to construct (commenced in 1708), Sir Christopher Wren's masterpiece was built upon the wreckage of the Great Fire which destroyed 80% of the City of London in 1666. It survived unscathed from repeated bombings during WWII.

ST BRIDE'S CHURCH
 The second tallest of all Wren's churches. In 1712, Thomas Rich, a baker's apprentice, wanted to create something spectacular for his bride on their wedding day and found inspiration from the people. He subsequently made his fortune selling similar cakes.

THE GHERKIN
 30 St Mary Axe, commonly known as 'The Gherkin', is another triumph by architect Lord Foster. It was completed in 2001.

CANARY WHARF
 Finished in 1991, this new collection of high rise buildings created London's second financial district and revived the old Docklands. One Canada Square is second in height to the Shard at 225 metres (739ft).

TOWER BRIDGE
 Completed in 1914, and often mistaken as London Bridge, it takes only 90 seconds for the two drawbridges to rise.

MONUMENT
 Designed by Wren to commemorate the Great Fire. At 65 metres high (212 ft), marking its distance from Pudding Lane where the fire began, it still remains the tallest isolated stone column in the world.

FREMASON'S HALL
 The headquarters of the Masonic Lodge, a formal organisation that arose from obscure origins in the late 16th to early 17th centuries.

THE SHARD
 Taking four years to construct and opening in 2012, at 306 metres (1,004ft) tall it is, at present, the tallest building in the EU.

MILLENNIUM BRIDGE
 Another Lord Foster design, the London Millennium Bridge is the capital's newest bridge. Also known as the 'Wobbly Bridge' due to a design defect.

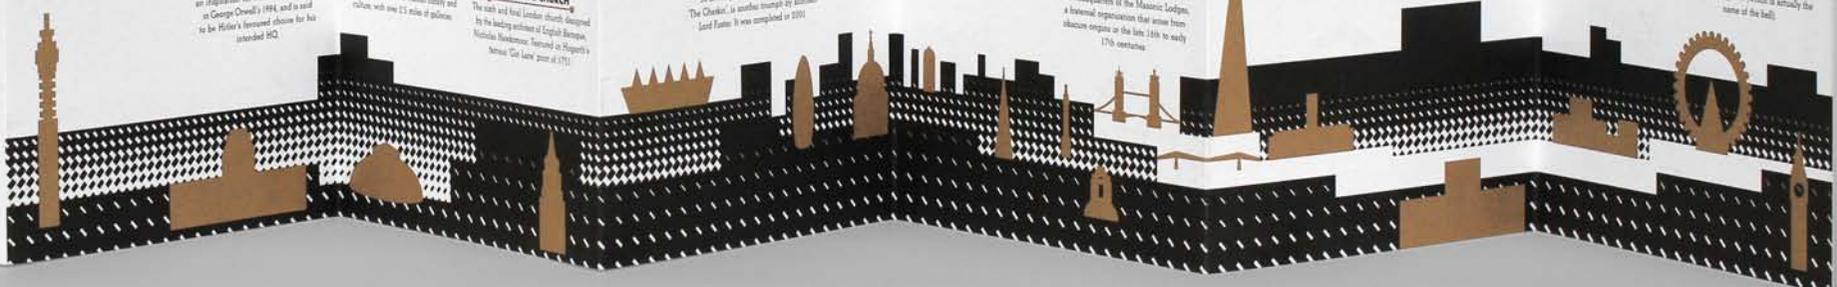

TATE MODERN
 Formerly the Bankside Power Station, built in 1947 and designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott. Converted into the Tate Modern, it is best known for the temporary bill Tordis Hall, used to display large commissioned works by contemporary artists.

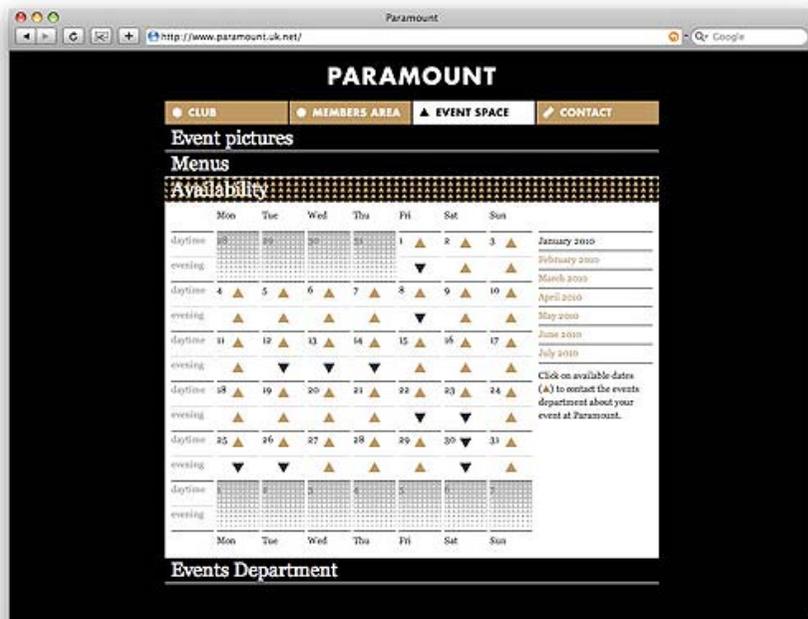

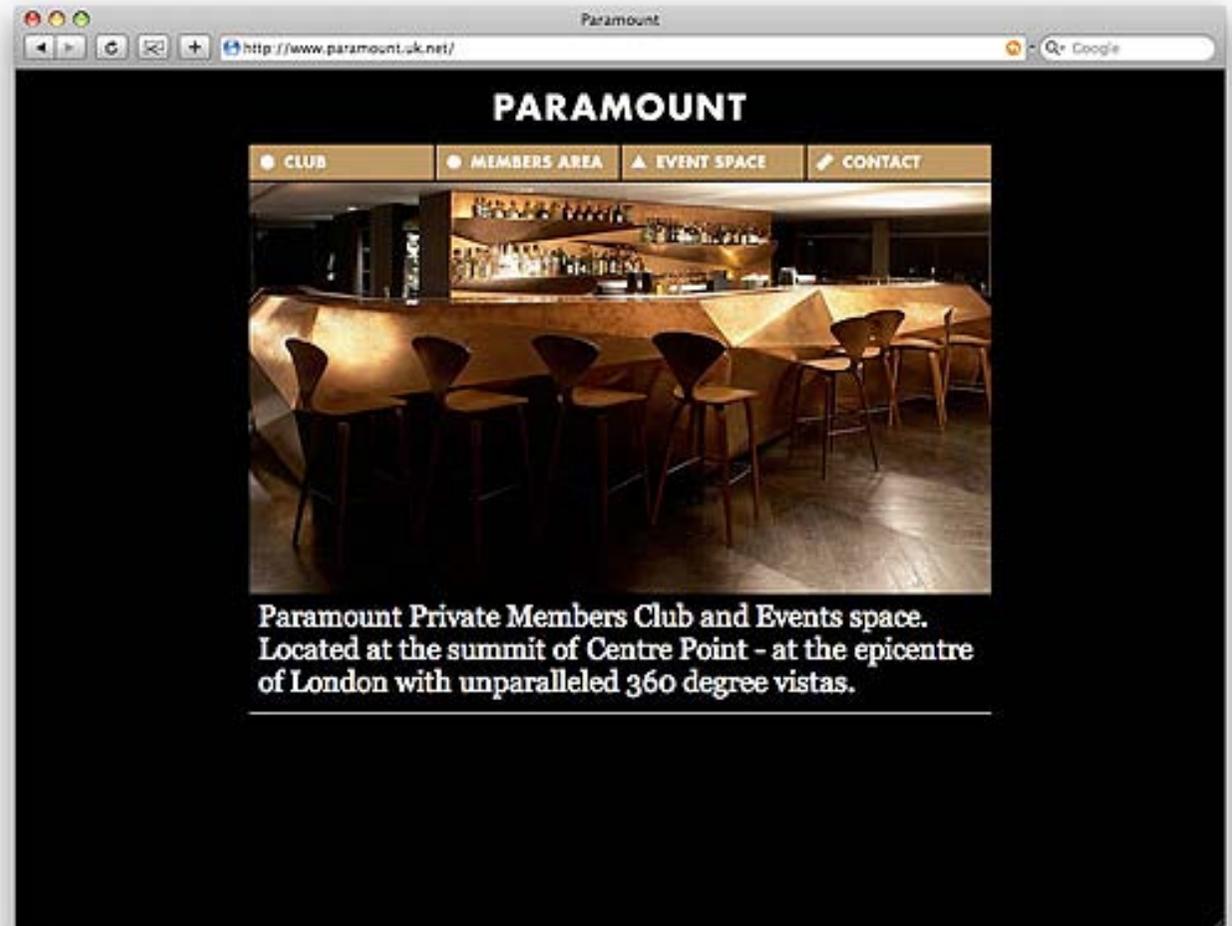

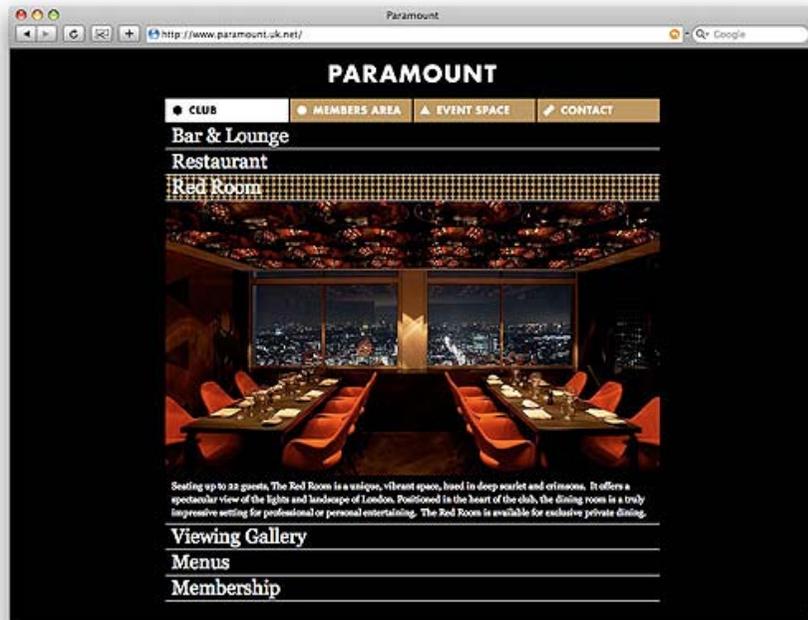

OPERA HOUSE
 The Opera House is also home to the Royal Ballet, known simply as 'Royal Ballet'. This current building (1858) is the third theatre on the site following Savoyard House.

NATIONAL THEATRE
 The National Theatre's first artistic director was Sir Laurence Olivier and was based at The Old Vic. This present example of Brutalist architecture opened in 1976 and houses three separate auditoriums for the UK's most prominent theatre company.

LONDON EYE
 Opening in 2000, at 135m this is the tallest Ferris wheel in Europe. It was supposed to be a temporary structure, but has since become a lasting symbol of our capital.

HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT
 The Palace of Westminster is the seat of Britain's two parliamentary houses, the House of Lords and the House of Commons. The most prominent feature is St Stephen's Tower, more commonly known as 'Big Ben' (which is actually the name of the bell).
